Kent County's Storied Landscape: Place – Past and Present premieres April 18 on MPT

Documentary explores tales of the land, water, and people who have woven a tapestry of cultures and customs in the Eastern Shore county

OWINGS MILLS, MD – Maryland Public Television (MPT) will premiere its original documentary Kent County's Storied Landscape: Place – Past and Present on Tuesday, April 18 at 8:30 p.m. during its 19th annual Chesapeake Bay Week®. The half-hour film will debut on MPT-HD and will be available to view live and on-demand using MPT's livestream, online video player, and the PBS App. A preview of the program is available HERE.

Maryland's Kent County lies between the Sassafras and Chester rivers on the Eastern Shore of the Chesapeake Bay. Its cultural landscape reflects how people have managed and used its resources over centuries and how that use has shaped the land. Kent County's Storied Landscape explores how history can be found in a landscape, and how people can appreciate a region's past, understand its present, and imagine its future.

Kent County's
Storied Landscape
PLACE - PAST AND PRESENT

The documentary was produced in cooperation with the Kent Conservation & Preservation Alliance and incorporates information, stories, and resources from the Preliminary Cultural Landscape Assessment of Kent County, Maryland and the Kent County Story Map, which document and share stories uncovered during a years-long survey of the history, integrity, and significance of the location.

During the film, viewers travel the length and breadth of the peninsula, enjoying views from land, air, and sea. They walk the coastline where Native Americans once lived and join an archaeologist discovering evidence of centuries-old oyster roasts. Then, they examine how the footprints of English settlements are revealing evidence of early colonial trade and follow a young man through an African American graveyard as he seeks out his ancestors' lost heritage. Finally, they join present-day watermen harvesting rockfish, oysters, and crabs using the same fishing techniques as those of the area's indigenous inhabitants.

An encore presentation of Kent County's Storied Landscape: Place – Past and Present will air on MPT-HD at 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 22, the final day of MPT's 2023 Chesapeake Bay Week observance. For more information, visit mpt.org/bayweek.
